

3 THINGS TO CONSIDER WHEN MODIFYING YOUR HOME TO INSTALL A NEW WINDOW OR DOOR

Do you have a door or window that you wish you didn't? Maybe you simply wish an existing window were larger or an existing door were in a different location. If you're looking to modify the appearance or the functionality of your home's doors and windows, we can help! We specialize in modifying your home's existing window and door structure to meet the functional and aesthetic needs of today's modern families. Here are a few things to keep in mind if you're considering new windows or doors.

1 NOT A GREAT DIY PROJECT

Thanks to YouTube and Google, homeowners can successfully and beautifully tackle so many projects themselves these days, but expanding openings on load-bearing walls is definitely not a simple weekend warrior project. Anything that deals with the structure of your home could compromise not only your safety but also the integrity (and functionality!) of the new window or door you're attempting to install. This is one task that is best left to the professionals.

2 EXTERIOR WALL TYPE MATTERS

If your home's exterior is brick or stucco, replacing or expanding windows or doors might be a bit more complicated but it's still quite doable. There might be new brickwork or stucco patching needed, but it can be done. New or expanded windows or doors on homes with wood or vinyl exteriors will be more straightforward and, likely, a bit less expensive as it typically will not be as labor-intensive. Bottom line: a professional can handle any type of exterior.

3 YOU MIGHT BE IN LUCK

Do you want to turn your existing window into a new door? Then you're in for a nice surprise - it's easier to turn a window opening into a door opening vs cutting an entirely new door opening. Voila. You just saved yourself time and money.

While moving or enlarging window and door openings might seem daunting to you, it's second-nature to us. Let us help you improve the look of your home while making your space work for you with natural light, better flow and beautiful aesthetics. We'll handle all the technical aspects, the re-wiring, the re-framing, the permits and the inspections. You just sit back, relax and enjoy your beautiful new space.
